Venus

As far as Konstantin Grcic was concerned, the thought of designing the 1001st tame chair version with four legs was just too boring. Instead he created from the intelligent combination of two wooden shells a new type of chair with high sculptural quality.

“Venus” is free of ballast in every respect: in simple, bright wood, with smooth, clear contours and astonishingly lightweight. An exciting, new chapter in the long history of sitting – and one of the most aesthetic options for giving that special touch to a conference room or dining room.
